DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-18 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 7-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kishida et al. (U.S. 7,055,955 B2)

Kishida et al. teach a laser Doppler eyed fundus blood flowmeter wherein blood flow parameters are obtained and the vessel diameter of the measured blood vessel is obtained so as to measure the blood flow rate in the blood vessel (col. 1 lines 17-29).

Kishida et al. do not teach the relation between the measurement of flow velocity and internal vessel diameter determination with that of a vessel wall thickness.

Monchalin et al. teach a method and apparatus for mapping the wall thickness of tubes (see title) wherein the invention is based on using a single laser Doppler system to measure the wall thickness (see fig. 7). The calculation is done by comparing the internal diameter of the tubular structure with that of the outer diameter of the tubular structure (see abstract).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to have modified Kishida et al. wherein a laser-Doppler device is utilized to determine vessel parameters of the retina and to have included the means for determining wall thickness as outlined by Monchalin et al. in order to provided for more diagnostic parameters of the retinal vascular structures.
